The Foodie

In 2011, The Farm to table concept will still be making big waves not only in Southern California but also in the United States. The National Restaurant Association's "What's Hot" survey of members of the American Culinary Federation revealed "healthy children's meals, sustainable seafood and gluten-free cuisine also made it onto the top restaurant menu trends, while mobile food trucks and pop-up restaurants will be the top operational trends in restaurants next year.

The Fashionista

You know you always have to look your best, and your high-tech gadgets are no exception. For your kindle, outfit it in an original Diane Von Furstenberg or Kate Spade cover. For 2011 you will be sure to see a variety of strappy shoes, wide trousers, longer hemlines on skirts, jewel tones, florals and the color orange making a bold appearance.

The Small Fry

Keep the little ones' heads warm with the cute, cuddly Buddy Tops hats. These high-quality fleece hats come in a variety of animals, including a wolf, a tiger and a panda. www.BuddyTops.com

The Techie

It's hard to believe the kindle was launched a little over a year ago, and the ipad in less time than that. This year the techies will still be having fun with those gadgets as they go more mainstream. Look for more big leaps with mobile video, voice recognition technology, new tablets and 3D Television.

The Surfer

Surfing gets a makeover with all different types of adventures to choose from; your standard wave surfing, stand up paddle surfing, kite surfing, river surfing, lake surfing, sand surfing and volcano surfing. Choose your kind of adventure and book with a boutique company like www.wavehunters.com.
